COMMUNITY PROFILE

East Longmeadow, MA is a town of 16,460 people that is located south of the city of Springfield on the Connecticut border. The town is historically known for its red and brown sandstone quarries, which provided the building materials for not only buildings in the region but for monuments and buildings across the nation. Having at one time over 100 quarries, settlers from around the world came to East Longmeadow, establishing the diverse framework from which the town of East Longmeadow is built. Still today, as a suburb of Springfield, the town offers a mix of rural, suburban, urban, and industrial life.

The East Longmeadow Public School District is a district serving over 2,400 students enrolled in five schools (3 elementary, 1 middle, 1 high). ELPS is committed to partnering with ELPS families to create a nurturing, equitable, and inclusive learning environment in which all students feel valued, connected, and ready to learn. ELPS staff members all work together to equip ELPS graduates throughout the K - 12 journey with the needed skills to be engaged, connected, productive, and empowered citizens who shape their own paths for success and lifelong learning.

The East Longmeadow School District is an equal opportunity employer.
